The relatives were thronged and windows all round the cage spectators.

The railroad train lay in the yard and were Messrs. M. L. Iger and wife, Bedford Station, New York the latter being a niece of Mr. O. N. S. of New York, who is accompanied by Gabriel Harrison, a intimate friend of Fayne, and father of a book Mr. Joseph Desimpicker, of Frankfort, Ky., was also present.

At 12 o'clock the crowd reached Oak Hill, the holders of tickets had begun to arrive and take positions on the platform which had been built for the purpose. It was a shaft of half marble, surmounted by a superb column of white marble, and is supported on a square base. The height granitic six feet and the diameter of the column is four feet and fourteen feet. Its general design is Roman, as are the details. The inscriptions and designs on the shaft are as follows: The design is the following brief description:

JOHN HOWARD PAYNE,
author of
"HOME SWEET HOME,"
Born June 13 1792; died April 10th 1862.

The monument was shrouded in folds of white and unveiled during the exercises. The people passed in and out with seats provided for about 1,500 people. The front of the speakers' stand was covered with evergreens and the rear with a national flag and the Texas colors appeared on either side.

When the procession reached the cemetery the cortege was carried to the grave. Inside the grounds and into a beautiful vault the monument. It rested upon a bed of evergreens and flowers.

The order of exercises was as follows:
1. Music, by Marine Band.

A PHILHARMONIC SOCIETY PERFORMER AWARDED.

A well-known citizen of Detroit was out on the street yesterday with a $5 umbrella over him, when he observed that a stranger was dogging his footsteps. After making sure of the fact he wheeled around and said:

"See here, sir; you are following me."

"Because I want that umbrella. You will leave it somewhere within half an hour, and I might as well have it as some one perfectly able to buy a dozen umbrellas."

"Don't you worry about my leaving it," observed the children as they walked off.

He entered the door of the world street, took a step up the stairs of the Walker block, and rang a call at a telephone headquarters.

"When I see you," said the man in the place he started for the postoffice, and had just begun the building when he threw up his hands and said, "Hanging me left haven't left that umbrella!"

He rushed back to the telephone office like a man who had just been told that the police were in the room, in search of the man who had just been told the clerk's remark: "Oh! was that your red chin-whiskers?"

SWAPPING PISTOLS.

"Arrested for carrying a pistol, was he?" asked a magistrate of an officer, referring to a gentleman who had just been arraigned.

"Let's see the pistol," The weapon was produced and handed to the judge, who examined it and asked:

"Where did you get it?"

"Bought it at a hardware store."

"What did it cost?"

"Fifteen dollars."

"Fine implement. How'll you swap it?" and the judge drew out a pistol and handed it to the prisoner.

"Take ten dollars to boot."

"All right. I fine you ten dollars. That makes to even."

SPIRITUAL SACRIFICE.

Spiritual sacrifice includes more than merely attending the church services; it is to be ready with the knife of Abraham to slay our wills and passions, to be obedient to Paul to be able to say, with the expression "I die daily." A spiritual sacrifice is the daily crucifixion of the flesh, the eye and ear, the willingness to count to tread the paths of tribulation of the Lord; this is the offering of hands on the sick that they may recover.

THE GOVERNOR.

Governor Grover Cleveland has done several plucky things since he took office, but perhaps the pluckiest to date if one considers the make-up of the Democratic party in New York, is his veto of the item in the supply bill making a present of $20,000, out of the State treasury to the Catholic Protectorate.

THE MAGNETIC INFLUENCE OF WOMAN.

This is the exuberant way in which a western critic speaks of Helen Hancock's first appearance in his town: "When she first appeared before the public she faintled at the sight of her admirers, and her husband thought it was voluptuousness. The 'rich tones of that magnificent organ overcame her like a Te Deum or a hypodermic injection.'"

A POPULAR GOVERNOR.

The people of the state of New York have reason to bow heartily commend Governor Cleveland for the fearless manner and resolute line in which he has put the official knife into the supply 'bill, and cut foot of its stems enough to save the state treasury $200,000.
